RUSSIANS MAKING STUBBORN STAND ALONG DNIESTER

Germans and Austrians Harass Army Defeated Before Lemberg, but von Linsingen Is Forced to Abandon North Bank of River.

Berlin Claims No Further
Advance for von Mackensen—Petrograd Says Enemy's Losses Were Enormous.

French Report Repulse of Counter Attacks on Positions Taken Yesterday in
"the Labyrinth."

AUSTRIAN HEADQUARTERS, June 25.—The results of the success achieved by Gen. von Boehm-Ermolli's army in taking Lemberg and in the battles to the east of the Galician capital, are making themselves felt also in the Dniester. Since taking Mikolow this army has been operating with Gen. Linsingen's army to the south and has been pressing the Russians back upon their positions north of the Dniester.

The Russians offered a desperate resistance on the Dniester, especially in the center, to permit their retreating armies to save themselves and their war material. The retreat of the Russians along the San and in the angle on the "Vistula" continued under conditions which are bringing successful results to the pursuing army of Archduke Joseph Ferdinand.

Von Linsingen's Army Retires to South Bank of the Dniester.
BERLIN, June 25.—By wireless to Sayville.—German army quarters today gave out a report on the progress of hostilities, which reads:

"On the west front all attacks of the enemy yesterday were repulsed and German troops made local gains in several places.

"The village of Kopyayevka has been evacuated by the Germans.

"At a point to the west of Stegus, German troops have taken possession of a part of the enemy's line.

"The situation of the Marshal von Mackensen's army remains unchanged.

"Northwest of Halles parts of the army under Gen. von Linsingen had to be withdrawn before superior enemy counter-attacks at Tarnow towards the southern bank of the Dniester. Further up the stream, we are making progress in our attack, the left wing of the army standing at Chodorow."

Russians Expect to Keep Austro-German Troops From Withdrawing.
LONDON, June 25.—Something in the nature of a lull in the fighting as compared to the feverish activity of the last two weeks is enabling the military observers on both sides to take stock of the present situation and forecast future operations.

Petrograd asserts that the Russian defensive positions are so secure that the Austro-Germans will not be able to withdraw many troops for use against the allies of Russia. The Russians assert further that their present line before Warsaw is as strong as it ever was and that their armies on the River Dniester will fall back only if the eastward drive of the Austro-Germans from Lemberg threatens to cut them off.

Campbell Case Testimony of Mrs. Blair That Daughter Is Said to Declare to Be False

THE statement of Mrs. Blair's daughter, as the Campbell attorneys declare she gave it to them, contradicts the sworn testimony of Mrs. Blair in the Campbell case.

The daughter declares she is a natural child. (Mrs. Blair swore she had a stepdaughter.)

The daughter declares she never was known as Mrs. Hicks and never married a man named Hicks. (Mrs. Blair swore her stepdaughter was formerly a Mrs. Hicks.)

The daughter declares she never married an Englishman and never was in Europe. (Mrs. Blair swore that her stepdaughter was the wife of an English Duke and lived with him in England.)

The daughter declares that she has given birth to only one child, a son, still living, and that she never was in the Grand Union hotel in New York. (Mrs. Blair swore that her stepdaughter gave birth to the girl, later known as Lois Campbell, and that her husband addressed a letter to "Mrs. F. A. Hicks, Grand Union Hotel, New York.")

The daughter says that she is the daughter of Mrs. and Mrs. John T. Snoddy, born in Norborne, Mo., Oct. 2, 1879, and that she was married in Chicago to L. C. Hitchcock, her mother's divorced husband. (Mrs. Blair swore that her stepdaughter was the mother of the girl known later as Lois Campbell, and that she was married to a man named Oscar Hicks who was not seen again after the Galveston flood.)

The daughter identified a photograph offered in evidence as a picture of herself. (Mrs. Blair swore that this was a picture of her stepdaughter, Mrs. Hicks, the purported mother of Lois Campbell.)

PRESIDENT TO KEEP US OUT OF WAR "IF HE CAN"

Mr. Wilson Passes Promise to Group of Railroad Men in Springfield, Mass.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 25.—

"Keep us out of war, Mr. President," I will if I can."

The President was in Springfield for five minutes at 9 o'clock this morning while on his way to his summer home in Cornish, N. H. He did not speak to the crowd at the station, but when his car had been taken to the railroad yards he waved his hand and smiled at a group of railroad men. They called to him and he came out and shook hands with them and gave them the assurance quoted.

Mr. Wilson will be met by an automobile at Windsor and taken to Cornish.

The President spent yesterday with Col. E. M. House, who has recently returned from Europe. It was said that he brought no information which would lead Mr. Wilson to expect an early cessation of hostilities.

President Arrives at Cornish; Motors From Windsor, Vt.
CORNISH, N. H., June 25.—President Wilson, accompanied by his daughter, Margaret, and Dr. Cary T. Grayson, the White House physician, arrived at his summer home here soon after 1 o'clock this afternoon. He was met at the railroad station at Windsor, Vt., by his cousin, Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, and motored to Cornish.

BELLE OF CALHOUN HITS ROCK, SINKS 90 MILES UP RIVER

Steamboat Settles in 12 Feet of Water Near Moxier, Ill.; No
One Drowned.

The steamboat Belle of Calhoun struck a submerged rock in Moxier Bay, near Moxier, Ill., 90 miles up the Mississippi River from St. Louis, at 11:30 a. m. yesterday and sank to the upper deck in 12 feet of water. No one was drowned.

The boat left St. Louis Wednesday afternoon for Rip rap and was starting on the return trip. Taking advantage of the high water, it left the channel and entered the bay, which is not navigable at low stages, and was proceeding to a landing to pick up some freight. The shore is rocky and large rocks which lie at the edge of the water at low stage are now submerged. One of these was struck and a hole was stove in the hull. It filled slowly and the boat settled to the bottom.

The boat is owned by the Independent Packet Co. of St. Louis and was under the command of Capt. Frank Gill. It makes twice-a-week trips to Rip rap and way points in Calhoun county. During the summer many round trip excursionists are carried, but at the office of the company today it was stated that there were no round-trip passengers on the present trip and it is not supposed that there were any passengers on board when it sank, as the boat had just started on the return trip.

The damage to the hull is slight and it is thought that there will be no difficulty in raising the boat.

The boat sank last October at Illinois Island, opposite Clinton terrace, with a cargo of apples, but was raised.

ENDED LIFE WITH AMMONIA

Youth Found in Dark Room of Photo
Studio in Evansville, Ind.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., June 25.—Webster Cline, 30 years old, was found today unconscious in the dark room of the photograph studio where he was employed. He died soon afterward.

The young man had locked himself in the room. Near his side was a bottle half full of ammonia. The coroner thinks Cline killed himself.

CHANCE CLEW LED TO AMAZING STORY ABOUT MRS. BLAIR

Campbell Case Witness Recognized as Figure in Two Previous Suits of Same Kind.

BOTH OF THEM FAILED

"Mrs. Hicks" Said to Be Her Daughter and to Contradict
Will Contest Testimony.

In 1898 a negro laundryman was bitten by a dog when he delivered a parcel to one of his customers in Kansas City, a Mrs. George Johnson, wife of a bank teller. Seventeen years later that incident led to astonishing disclosures in the James Campbell will contest, and the statement of the Campbell attorneys that Mrs. Edith Blair, star witness for the contestants in the will case, and Mrs. Johnson were the same person, and that she had figured prominently in two previous attempts to profit from estates of deceased millionaires.

A statement given out by the attorneys declares that a woman who, Mrs. Blair testified, was her stepdaughter and the mother of Lois Campbell, subsequently marrying an English Duke, was the same person who, in 1898, was produced in a will contest as the daughter of Kate Stokes Stetson, widow of an Eastern millionaire theatrical man.

Clew Received at Trial.
The negro's clew came in the progress of the trial while Morton Jourdan, one of the Campbell attorneys, was cross-examining Mrs. Blair. Someone sent him a note saying that the janitor in Judge Henning's court knew the witness in Kansas City years ago. When the tip was investigated the janitor told of Mrs. Johnson and her dog.

From this slender start the thread of Mrs. Johnson's life story was picked up and followed through an amazing labyrinth of adventure, leading from the birth of Gloriana F. N. Judson, E. V. P. Schneiderhahn and Benjamin Schurmer, who declare positively they have proof for the whole story. The Post-Dispatch reached a complete and detailed account of the career of the claimant in the Stetson case, but, of course, there was nothing at the time to connect Mrs. Blair with that affair.

Want Lawyers' Statement Shows.
The statement of the Campbell attorneys, based upon the investigation conducted for many months, shows the following:

In 1872 Gloriana Ray first appeared in Norborne, Mo., then an important Western Missouri trading point, as the wife of John T. Snoddy, a well-to-do merchant. To them were born two children, Laura, in 1874, and John Thomas Jr. in 1876. Old residents of Norborne declare that Mrs. Blair, who has been recently seen in St. Louis, is the same person as Mrs. Snoddy. Her husband died in 1878.

Attorney Jourdan himself lived in Norborne for 10 years, but not until after the Snoddys had left there. It was through his personal acquaintance in the Carroll County town that he succeeded in establishing subsequent identifications.

After her husband's death, Mrs. Snoddy came to St. Louis, opening a notion store at 1244 Clark avenue. Here she frequently was visited by Norborne acquaintances when they came to this city.

Mrs. Snoddy went from here to Chicago and was married there to Louis C. Hitchcock, a newspaper man, Sept. 26, 1882. They traveled about, living for a while at the Southern Hotel in St. Louis. From here they went to Kansas City, where Hitchcock became a Deputy Assessor. He was defeated for Assessor of Jackson County in 1890.

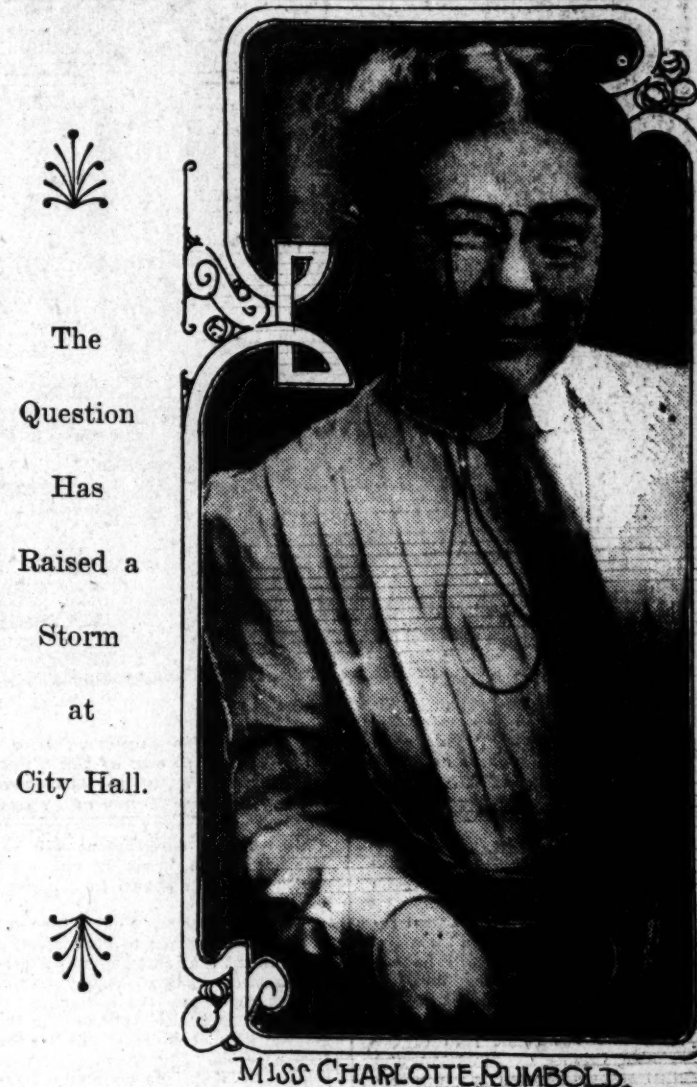

Contest for Blythe Estate.
In 1883 Thomas H. Blythe, a California multimillionaire, died in San Francisco. Mrs. Hitchcock set up a claim to his estate, declaring she was his daughter. Her story convinced several persons in St. Louis and Kansas City, who agreed to finance her. It was said at the time, for a fight for her supposed rights. Luther Babcock, then of the real estate firm of Babcock & O'Connor, 718 Chestnut street, afterward told Post-Dispatch reporter that he was intermediary for her in a transaction by which Louis C. Hitchcock, a liquor dealer of St. Louis, agreed to furnish $10,000 to defray preliminary expenses.

The case was fought to the Supreme Court of California, where Mrs. Snoddy-Hitchcock's claim was finally rejected. In June, 1888, she obtained a divorce from Hitchcock. A short time thereafter, the divorced husband and Mrs. Hitchcock's daughter, Laura Snoddy, were married in Chicago.

Mrs. Snoddy—she had had her former name restored—was next married to Johnson in 1894. He is still living, although the Campbell lawyers refuse to disclose his whereabouts, and, according to the lawyers, recently positively identified a photograph of Mrs. Blair as that of his former wife.

Stetson Will Contest.
In April, 1898, John Stetson died in Boston, leaving all of his $2,000,000 estate to his wife, known as Kate Stokes, a barbed wire manufacturer. She died 10 months later and Stetson's father filed a suit to break the son's will, alleging

What Is the Value of Her Services to the City?

RUMBOLD SALARY INCREASE UNLIKELY, ALDERMAN SAYS

Member of Committee Indicates That Bill Will Be Reported
Unfavorably.

The Ways and Means Committee of the Board of Aldermen is not likely to recommend the increase in pay from $1800 to $2500 asked for Miss Charlotte Rumbold, Supervisor of Recreation, by women and civic workers yesterday, it was stated this morning by a member of the committee who had sounded the other four members after yesterday's public hearing.

Two members, Chairman Hart and Alderman Ellers, are inclined to grant the increase. It is said, but Alderman Bur, Renick and Bergt, the other three, indicated yesterday they were opposed to an increase. A final decision will be reached at a meeting at 5:30 p. m. today.

Many Women at Hearing.
Women crowded the rooms of the Board of Aldermen yesterday afternoon to ask the committee to recommend an increase of salary for Miss Rumbold. There were also a number of men, most of whom joined in the women's plea. A few men opposed the increase. Conspicuous among these were men who had fought the parkway proposition.

Chairman Luke Hart, in calling the meeting to order, announced that the committee was so busy that the hearing would have to be finished in half an hour and the speeches would have to be very brief. The women spoke more briefly than the men and the hearing proceeded smoothly until Adam Wackman accused Oscar Leonard of talking too much and tried to shout him down. Chairman Hart told Wackman he would be put out if he did not behave and the crowd applauded so enthusiastically that Wackman stalked out of the room. He was jeered as he went.

Those who spoke in favor of the salary increase were Mrs. William H. Utter, Charles A. Stix, Mrs. Philip N. Moore, Miss Amelia C. Fruchte, Park Commissioner Cunliff, John H. Gundlach, Edward Forstet, Oscar Leonard, Mrs. H. A. Smith, Director of Public Welfare, Tolson and John E. Edwards. Those who spoke in opposition were Henry Korn, James B. Conroy, Adam Wackman, H. C. Koenig and E. V. P. Schneiderhahn.

Arguments Submitted.
The salary increase was advocated on the grounds that Miss Rumbold, in the eight years that she has directed the department, has raised it to a high plane of efficiency, that she is receiving much less than is paid for such work in other cities, that she has earned an increase as a business proposition, and that the city will lose her services unless her compensation is increased.

The objections to the increase were on the ground that men could be found who would do the work for less than Miss Rumbold is receiving, that it would be extravagant use of the taxpayers' money and that others were more deserving of increased salaries.

WOMAN SHOT FIVE TIMES BY A ROOMER WHO KILLS HIMSELF

Mrs. Margaret Callahan, Who This Week Caused Henry Rowe's Arrest, Wounded by James Cropp at 3532 Olive When She Repulses
His Advances.

Mrs. Margaret Callahan, 30 years old, 3532 Olive street, who caused the arrest Wednesday of Henry Rowe and "Georgie" Williams, former detective, for peace disturbance, was shot and seriously wounded at her home at 12:45 o'clock this afternoon by James Cropp, who then shot and killed himself.

Mrs. Callahan, in a statement made in the presence of policemen after the shooting, declared Cropp shot her because she had resented his invitation to remain in his room after she had carried his dinner to him. Cropp was about 45 years old and had roomed at Mrs. Callahan's house since last Sunday.

Nettie Gooding, a nurse, who lives in Mrs. Callahan's house, said she heard a half dozen revolver shots. She rushed to the street to call the police. Returning, she found Mrs. Callahan unconscious on the front doorstep.

It appeared, she said, that Mrs. Callahan had been shot twice in the back, in the left wrist and twice in the right wrist.

Mrs. Callahan and Cropp were placed in an ambulance. Cropp died on the way to the city hospital and Mrs. Callahan was taken immediately to the emergency operating room.

Miss Gooding declared Mrs. Callahan had told her that Cropp forced his way into her room about 3 o'clock this morning, flourishing a revolver and making threats if she did not permit him to remain. She finally induced him to depart.

Among Cropp's effects the police found a letter he had written, indicating he had contemplated suicide. The letter, addressed to L. J. Tracy of 2421 South Spring avenue, read:

"I want you to have the contents of my trunk, at 8 North Fourteenth street, in the tailor shop of F. Sanders. I want Lena Sanders to have the trunk. Destroy all the papers. I want you to have my grip, clothing and the gun, too, when my life comes to an end at 3532 Olive street."

"I would love so much to see you, Cronin, Mrs. Tracy, Little John and Tom, and Frank Linken, but it can't be. Tell Sanders that I hope to meet him and Horace Martin in the great beyond."

Six weeks ago, according to the witness, Smith wrote to him announcing that his wife had died in her bath. Smith subsequently visited him and produced his wife's will, whereupon the witness expressed surprise because Smith had told him a few days previously that he was in South Sea that Smith was introduced to Miss Burnham, who promptly took out $5000 worth of life insurance which she said was for the benefit of her mother.

"Next day," said the witness, "Smith married Miss Burnham."

"The next witness was Dr. Burrows, now of the army medical corps, who arrived from the fighting line to testify that he examined Miss Burnham for insurance and that he had found her to be a first-class risk.

A bathtub reposed on the counsel table yesterday while the prosecution described the death of Beatrice Mundy. It is the crown's contention that Smith drowned his wife, whom he had married, maintains that they died natural deaths due to some disease.

A jurymen suggested that someone be put in the bathtub for a practical demonstration.

"When the bathtub is removed to your private quarters," remarked the Judge, "you can put one of yourselves in, to select some jurymen about the size of the woman."

Accordingly, before the trial is concluded, it will be necessary for some jurymen to perform this service.

Dr. F. A. French related how the defendant, in July, 1912, then masquerading under the name of Williams, called on him shortly before Beatrice Mundy's death. He declared that she was treated for fits. The crown contends that the defendant was thus preparing for a plausible explanation for her forthcoming demise.

Three days later Smith summoned him by note, saying: "Come at once; I am afraid my wife is dead." The doctor hurried to the house and found the woman dead in the bathtub. Death was due, he testified, to suffocation.

A lawyer, testifying for the prosecution, told how Smith had sought him before the woman's death and arranged for his will, whereby everything each owned would go to the other in case of death.

HAZING CONTINUES AT ANNAPOLIS, SAYS ONE MIDSHIPMAN

Member of Second Class Tells of a "Plebe" Being Forced to "Face the Wall."

ACCUSED OF PERJURY

Keys to Building and Rooms
Were in His Possession,
He Testifies.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 25.—Hazing or "running" of fourth class men was practiced at the Naval Academy in the academic term just closed, according to Midshipman Charles M. Reagle of the second class, who was called to the witness stand today at the court of inquiry investigating irregularities in examinations.

Reagle told of visiting a room and finding Midshipman A. B. Bolling, a "plebe," there, "facing the wall."

He explained that a "plebe" always faces the wall when an upper classman comes into a room where he is.

Reagle so changed his previous testimony regarding his nocturnal visits to different departments in the Academy Building that Congressman Carlin of the counsel of the defense remarked to the court, "that it was clear that the (Reagle) had perjured himself." The court, however, ruled that the testimony be received.

Reagle said the practice of hazing was in vogue when he entered the academy. He said that when a plebe had been "cussed out," as he put it, and repeatedly compelled to perform physical exercises, including standing on his head under a shower bath and doing certain exercises as many as 200 times at a stretch. He said he had heard of boys "being made to do these stunts until they fell exhausted."

Earlier in his testimony today Reagle told of having numerous keys to buildings, rooms and receptacles in the office of instructors. He also said there was a general circulation of keys to certain rooms in the barracks where midshipmen go and smoke in violation of rules.

One of the honor men testifying earlier in the week said that there were examinations which could not be passed unless one had the "dope" beforehand. It was shown that upper class men conducted classes at night in their rooms to train under class men for the examinations.

Why Thaw Left Harvard Is Made Sanity Case Issue

whether the things related were the cause of his leaving Harvard.

Thaw first heard of Cook's intention when a reporter asked him why he had been expelled from college.

"You damned fool, I never was expelled," snapped Thaw. Later he made this claim statement:

"Getting a commission to question President Elliot is simply a fishing excursion. It is absolutely untrue that Dr. Elliot called me into his office at noon one day and told me to get out by 5 o'clock. What actually did occur I prefer to have President Elliot tell."

The Harvard affair is the one big development in the Thaw case. The fact that Cook intended to get the question of Thaw's leaving college cleared up was taken as indicating that he "purposes to go more deeply into old 'wild times' than was done in the other habeas corpus proceedings."

Based on his own testimony, Thaw said that his mother gave him a second murder trial. Cook intends to show that insanity showed itself chiefly in an immoral and degenerate way of living on the part of Thaw prior to the Stanford White murder.

Witnesses From Canada.

The towns of Coaticook and Sherbrooke in Canada and Colebrook, Granby and Berlin, N.H., yesterday furnished a reminder of the Thaw money that was liberally spent after Thaw escaped from Mattawan. Of the 14 witnesses who testified Thaw was sane, one had sold him an automobile and rented him an office, one had been his paid guide on a mountain climbing trip, one was manager of a hotel at which he stopped, one had rented him a piano, and one, though a Sheriff charged with his custody, had been paid $10 a day by him as "custodian" for 10 months.

One witness, when asked "Did you ever know him to display any signs of insanity?" replied, "I never heard him say a profane word in my life."

But in the main the Thaw was a good one for Thaw, for the witnesses were positive in their statements and were not materially shaken on cross examination. Thaw seemed highly pleased. Little by little he is regaining his old manner. He issued several statements and was chatty with reporters. But he has not written any notes of advice, to Mr. Ransdell, his lawyer, as he has done in all previous court hearings.

LEADING FAMILIES HAD TO BEG IN LEMBERG STREETS

German Report Says Wives Baked While Men
Chopped Wood and Ate in Kitchens—
Russians Forced Use of Own
Language in Schools.

BERLIN, June 25.—The Berlin Tageblatt has received a dispatch from its correspondent at Lemberg descriptive of the situation in that city which reads:

"Reviewing the nine months' rule of the Russians in Lemberg it is found that among the chief sufferers in the Galician capital were certain former government officials whose salaries could no longer be paid. Prominent families were reduced to begging in the streets and compelled to satisfy their hunger in the kitchens of other people. Well known men of Lemberg shopped and sold wood, while their wives baked and peddled bread and cakes around the city."

"The prices of food reached exorbitant figures. Butter cost six crowns (12.50 per kilogram (3.50 pounds) or equivalent to 55 cents a pound. The city of Lemberg issued emergency two-crown notes which, however, had a barter value of only one crown."

Russian Text Books Only.

"Regular Russian policemen and Cossacks patrolled the city. The schools were permitted to stay open only with the express consent of the military Governor. At least five hours every week had to be devoted to the study of the Russian language. Only text books approved for use in Russian schools were permitted in Lemberg. The Russian calendar was introduced. Certain prominent names were changed to Russian names. The invaders are one of these. M. Gussakiewicz, a well known Russian leader, was later rewarded by being named Mayor of Przemyśl."

"A number of Polish and Ruthenian agitators who took sides with the Russians during their occupation of Lemberg, disappeared with the Russian forces."

"All men of military age were taken into custody by the Russian authorities, as were all pensioned Austrian and Hungarian officers. These included Gen. Ryk, a veteran of Sebastopol, more than 30 years of age."

Care Visited City Once.

"The Russian municipal officials began leaving the city the latter part of May and all had disappeared before Lemberg fell. Emperor Nicholas paid one visit to the Galician capital while it was under Russian control."

"Ruthenian books were destroyed by the Russian authorities and the exchange of telegrams and letters in the Ruthenian language was prohibited."

With the entry last Tuesday afternoon of Gen. von Boehm-Ermolli's army into Lemberg a great patriotic demonstration began. The city was decorated with flags and thousands of persons stood on balconies and in windows to await the columns of the victorious Austrian army and greeted their arrival with scenes of enthusiasm seldom witnessed there. Flowers were showered into the automobiles of the officers all along the line and there was prolonged cheering for Emperor William, Emperor Francis-Joseph and the victorious army."

The citizens of Lemberg gave a formal welcome at the state house to Gen. von Boehm-Ermolli and his staff. Prof. Max Diez, Chairman of the faculty of Lemberg University delivered, on behalf of the city authorities, addresses in German and Polish languages to which Gen. Boehm-Ermolli replied. The Jewish population of the city joined in the cheering.

City Little Damaged by Russians.

The interior of Lemberg was little damaged by the Russians, although they burned the railway station and adjacent factories, and set fire to the petroleum depots, causing an enormous conflagration. Engineers effectively destroyed the roads behind the retreating Russians. The rear guard corps gained time by delaying the Austro-Germans four miles northwest of Lemberg and also to the west and south of the city."

PROF. DIEZ SAYS WIFE'S WEALTH UNDERLIES DOMESTIC TROUBLES

He Denies Charge of Desertion Made in Her Suit for Divorce Filed

Prof. Max Diez, professor of languages at Washington University, whose wife filed suit for divorce at Clayton yesterday, blames his domestic troubles upon the fact that his wife is wealthy and he is not.

Mrs. Diez was Miss Elsie Biddle Ver Steeg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Ver Steeg of 404 Lindell boulevard. It was while she was a student at the University that Prof. Diez courted her. The marriage took place two years ago and Ver Steeg fitted up a handsome home for the couple at 3336 Berlin avenue.

In her petition for divorce, Mrs. Diez charges desertion, but Diez denies that charge. He says that his wife continually reminded him that she was rich and that the home they lived in did not belong to him.

Diez says that last summer he went to Madison, Wisconsin, to teach in the State University summer school, and that although he wrote to his wife faithfully, she did not answer his letters and when he returned to St. Louis she refused to have anything to do with him.

Diez is 27 years old and lives at 3336 Berlin avenue. His wife, who is 25, lives with her parents.

SUGGESTION TO SPARE VESSELS CARRYING AMERICANS ATTACKED

BERLIN, Via London, June 25.—The Kreuzzeitung, in a long editorial today, attacks the Lokal Correspondenz Agency because the latter ventured to question whether it might not be politically wise to grant the request of the United States that submarines refrain from attacking passenger vessels upon which Americans are passengers.

The Kreuzzeitung says it hardly could believe its eyes when it read the offending article, and adds:

"To give such a guarantee would simply permit the shipment of further war munitions under cover of a few American passengers."

A COMPARISON.

Some idea of the relative value of the St. Louis newspapers as want ads mediums may be gained from the fact that last week the POST-DISPATCH printed 13,672 separate want ads, as compared with 11,325 printed by the four other St. Louis newspapers combined.

UNITED RAILWAYS PROTESTS AGAINST EXTENSION ORDER

Company Fears That City Will Be in Position to Take Over
All Its Franchises.

The United Railways Co. made a plea before the Public Service Commission today for a restraining order against the extension of a franchise for the work ordered, it might bring the franchise of the company within the operation of the new charter, which contains provisions for the taking over of public franchises by the city.

Henry S. Priest represented the United Railways and Ephraim Caplan and T. D. Cannon, attorneys, spoke for the West End Business Men's Association and the Tower Grove Heights Improvement Co., which originated the proceedings. J. A. Atkinson and Eugene McQuillin of the commissioners, heard the arguments.

Like to Hear Noise of Wheels.

In the course of his closing argument, Judge Priest, replying to a criticism regarding the noise made by the wheels of street cars, said:

"They complain of the noise made by the street cars. I know of no silent city excepting the city of the dead. When I hear the rumble of wheels of vehicles carrying raw material to the wharves or to the railroads or carrying busy men about their daily work, the toot of your railroad whistles, the noise of factories—as I now hear it to a degree upon these streets—I rejoice. It is the evidence of life and evidence of progress and prosperity."

"When you talk of muffling this noise, making of St. Louis a silent city, then you will make it what is fast coming if these complaints continue—a silent city."

One Dr. Priest Says.

Judge Priest said that, while the order of the commission is the most drastic ever issued against a public utility corporation, the United Railways Co. is anxious to comply as far as possible with the requirements set forth by the commission. He said, however, that the order of the commission directing the company to make application within 30 days to the municipal authorities for franchises and permits to construct loops and extensions is a matter which the company feels should be reconsidered.

He said that if the commission has the right to order the changes in tracks contained in the order it would have the right to order the company to construct tracks anywhere.

The company he said, has valuable franchises under the old laws. The new city charter, he added, arranges for no franchises for a long period of time and the result of asking for a new franchise would be to leave the question of all the franchises open to doubt.

Fears for Franchises.

"If we ask for franchises for the suggested loops," he said, "it is a matter of fact that we will be asked to bring all the franchises of the company under the provisions of the new charter."

Commissioner Atkinson asked him what he would suggest.

"The road will build the loops if the city will direct that it shall be done," replied Priest.

"Well what do you want?"

"I would suggest that the Public Service Commission grant to us the right to build the proposed connections. We have arranged for some things with the city by a mutual understanding. I insist, however, that whatever franchises the United Railways company has shall be immune immediately be subjected to conditions of the new charter."

Caplan was the first speaker to oppose the company's plea for a restraining order of the hearing. He said that Judge Priest's plea was a "sneak attack" and that the United Railways does not intend to subject itself to the powers of the city. He said his idea of the right course would be for the company to apply to the city for franchises and for the Public Service Commission to recommend such franchises. Then he continued, if the city grants franchises that are found to be unjust to the company, the Commission would have the right to advise the United Railways company that it will not be necessary to submit such franchises.

"I object," he said, "to the attitude of the United Railways in taking it for granted that the city will be unfair. They should go to the city and ask for the franchises as ordered and see what the city will do."

Caplan then took up other objections raised by the company in its formal request for a restraining order. The order of the commission directed that some work be completed within 30 days after the granting of the franchises by the city, some by the end of 1915, 1916 and 1917. The company objected to these time limits. Caplan argued that the time given was too liberal.

No New Tracks in 5 Years.

"The United Railways Co. has not laid one mile of new track in the last five years," he said. "The needs are crying needs. The work ordered completed by the end of 1916 should surely be ordered completed by June, 1915."

Caplan also argued that the company's objection to a one-year limit for equipping cars with a ventilation and heating system is absurd. Nine hundred of the 1400 cars now in operation, he said, already are fairly well equipped and he believed the company would have no trouble in equipping the 500 additional cars, together with the new cars now building.

He said that the order for heat in the cars when the temperature fell to 35 degrees was too mild instead of oppressive, and that 35 degrees would be more nearly fair.

T. D. Cannon continued the argument against a restraining order. He was particularly interested in the company's objections to a continuation of the Fourth street line.

ZAPATA ATTACKS CARRANZA ARMY OUTSIDE CAPITAL

Advance of Constitutional
Chief's Force on Mexico
City Is Delayed.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Zapata forces defending Mexico City have engaged the attacking Carranza army in a series of artillery duels and delayed its advance.

No details were contained in the advices reaching here today, which were the first indications that the Carranza advance would be resisted.

Communication with Mexico City has been cut off since June 18 when Gen. Gonzales, the Carranza commander, cut the wires to Vera Cruz at Ojumba, 25 miles east from the capital. Consular advices from Vera Cruz today said the wires were still down and it still was improbable that communication would be restored before the Carranza forces entered the city.

Vera Cruz dispatches to the Carranza agency here have insisted Gonzales was delaying his occupation "to save the city from the horrors of attack and had been ordered to exhaust every means to induce the Villa-Zapata troops to withdraw without resistance."

The Carranza war department urges that the Red Cross relief expedition be delayed until after the occupation of the capital. Gen. Carranza has promised full co-operation with it.

Mexicans Offer to Sell Red Cross Food Supplies.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., June 25.—A shipment of ammunition, clothing and shoes which was reported to have been held up at the Mexican border by United States soldiers Monday because it had not been declared at the Custom House was allowed to cross the border after a manifest had been made, it became known here today.

Contrary to general belief the clothing and ammunition were not for Villa troops, but are being rushed to Carranza forces under Lieutenant-Colonel Justo and Major Camargo at Baviague. The food situation in Sonora is perplexing the Red Cross officials. Offers to sell American supplies sent for distribution have been reported from several of the districts where suffering and want of food is reported.

An investigation now being conducted indicates that the famine is due more to depreciation of the buying power of Mexican script than to actual lack of supplies.

Campbell Lawyers Give Story of Life of Mrs. Edith Blair

that it was obtained through undue influence.

Immediately thereafter Mrs. Katherine Shirley Tons of 597 Washington boulevard, Chicago, wife of David K. Tons, an attorney, filed a claim to the property as the daughter of Kate Stokes Station. She declared that she relied upon the testimony of Mrs. Gertrude Johnson of Kansas City to prove her claim. Mrs. Johnson said she was present at a house in Quincy when Mrs. Tons was born and that her mother was Kate Stokes, then 17 years old.

According to her story, Kate Stokes and Mrs. Johnson had been girlhood friends in Chicago. Ultimately Mrs. Johnson declared, she became custodian of the baby and at different times, received money from Kate Stokes to help support the child. Once she declared the actress had visited her "daughter," when playing an engagement in Kansas City.

The Boston Stetsons soon set up the claim that Mrs. Tons was not the daughter of Kate Stokes, but that she was Laura Snoddy, and that Mrs. Snoddy and Mrs. Johnson were one and the same person. This was followed by an amusing revelation.

About that time there appeared in St. Louis a woman who said she was Mrs. Giorane Blythe Snoddy Hitchcock. She said she had come here from Memphis, Tenn., at the urgent solicitation of Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, who wished St. Louis friends to identify her as the former Mrs. Snoddy. The inference being that Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Hitchcock were two separate persons.

Two Remarkably Alike.

This was easily done. But a Post-Dispatch reporter, among others, discovered a remarkable resemblance between descriptions of Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Snoddy. They were of apparently the same age, both were blonde and each had the scar from a felon on a finger of her right hand.

The St. Louis Mrs. Snoddy said she was the undivorced wife of Hitchcock. She declared Mrs. Johnson had broken up her home, along with her husband and tried to palm herself off as Mrs. Hitchcock in the Blythe estate claim.

Among other things, she showed a water-color portrait of her daughter, Laura Snoddy, taken in childhood. She said Laura was drowned in Lake Michigan when a child. The photo was subsequently declared to be an exact copy of a water-color childhood picture of the supposed daughter of Kate Stokes.

The Stetson claim ultimately came to nothing, as the attorneys for the claimants, most of them of Kansas City, withdrew from the case before it came to trial and the claim was disallowed. It was widely commented upon in the newspapers in 1909, when the matter was at issue.

The Campbell attorneys say that Mrs. Blair, who at different times was known by the names of Brenda, Snyder, Snider and Blair, came to St. Louis in 1902, when she lived at 302 North Fifteenth street as an osteopath. From 1903 to 1910 she lived at 703 North Eighteenth

Woman Lawyer Who Is Favored for Place on New York Bench

NEW YORK.

June 25.—Mrs. Clarice Baright, a lawyer with an office at 170 Broadway, has made formal application to Mayor Mitchell for appointment to the bench of the Court of Special Sessions, where a vacancy was made recently by a death.

Several prominent women are backing her candidacy upon the ground that her service would be needed in handling cases of women and children, particularly the latter, for whom there is no special provision now made in assigning the work to the various divisions of the courts.

If she should be selected, she would be the first woman in New York to hold a judicial position.

After her parents died, she said, she lived with an uncle, William Thompson, who, she said, was shot in front of a San Antonio theater several years ago. She said this uncle took her to Scotland when she was 14 years old, and that when at that age she married Charles Heath, employed in a Glasgow bank.

After her parents died, she said, she lived with an uncle, William Thompson, who, she said, was shot in front of a San Antonio theater several years ago. She said this uncle took her to Scotland when she was 14 years old, and that when at that age she married Charles Heath, employed in a Glasgow bank.

She said she divorced Heath at Glasgow three or four years after her marriage, getting $2000 or $4000 alimony. When 24, she said, she married Blair, a carpenter, at El Paso. She said they had three children, Ann Elizabeth, Elsie and Frank. Blair, she said, disappeared in the Galveston flood. She told of having come to St. Louis in 1901 and of Campbell's visits to her at the Elgin south street address where she lived.

Mrs. Blair was attired in a stylish black hat and gown, and wore a brooch.

American Join British Army.

36 Out of 40 Who Go as Militaire on Ship Remain to Fight.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 25.—Joe H. Yeager, 20 years old, formerly a drug clerk, has returned from a trip to England, to which country he sailed on the tramp ship Baron Erskine, loaded with 1000 miles, for the British army. The vessel was loaded at New Orleans.

Sixty Americans, men and boys, were included in the crew of militaire, among them three undertakers, four telegraph operators and one an electrical engineer, all of whom were in the 36 who enlisted in the British army at Avonmouth, a close British port in Bristol channel, Yeager related.

Yeager said he had returned home late and feared a whipping if he awakened any of the household and decided to break in. He was turned over to his father.

Allies Contract for 20,000 Horses.

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 25.—A new contract for 20,000 horses, to be filled by Fort Worth markets for the French and English Governments, was awarded today to a local horse commission company.

ONE TRUSTY HELD IN CASE OF MURDER OF WARDEN'S WIFE

"Chicken Joe" Campbell Not Removed to Jail for Fear of Mobs.

JOILET, Ill., June 23.—Fear that violence might be done to "Chicken Joe" Campbell, the negro convict accused of the murder of Mrs. Odette Allen, wife of the warden of the prison here, if he were removed to the Will County Jail to await grand jury action, is keeping the accused man in his solitary cell in the penitentiary.

It was decided last night that the usual procedure of taking persons to the jail be followed but today it was considered better to keep the man in prison where he will be safe from possible mobs.

The long session held by the Coroner's jury last night was due, it is said, not to any hesitation about holding Campbell, but to considering whether others were involved in a plot against Mrs. Allen's life. The jury was unable to reach a decision on this point.

RESTRICTION ON PASSPORTS TIGHTENED BY THE ALLIES

Naturalized Americans Born in Enemy Countries to Be Barred by France; England Grows More Strict.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Naturalized Americans of German, Austro-Hungarian or Turkish origin are to be barred from France as a precaution against possibilities of espionage, according to a dispatch received at the State Department from Ambassador Page in London. The French passport bureau in London, the Ambassador stated, henceforth will refuse to give passports held by such naturalized citizens of the United States because of the charge that a "plant" exists in Antwerp for forging American passports. Without the approval of a French Consul, travelers from Great Britain cannot enter France. The British authorities have issued an order that persons arriving without passports will not be allowed to disembark from their steamer until they have obtained special permission from the Home Office.

MAIL CARRIER ACQUITTED OF MURDER OF POSTMASTER

Kansas Man Was Accused by Victim's Widow Who Said Her Husband Had Strange Power Over Her.

PAOLA, Kan., June 23.—Roscoe Hornbaker was found not guilty of killing George McElheny, postmaster of Louisville, Kan., by a jury late yesterday. The postmaster was slain Oct. 4, 1912. Hornbaker, a rural mail carrier, was charged by Mrs. Maud McElheny, the widow, with having a strange power over her. The widow was the principal witness for the State. Hornbaker denied her story.

With the acquittal of Hornbaker, the murder of McElheny becomes as much of a mystery as it was the night the postmaster fell dead in his home, his body pierced by a charge of shot.

NIGHT COURT BILL TO GO BACK

Aldermen Not Expected to Pass It Over Mayor's Veto.

A bill providing for a night session of a police court will be returned to the Board of Aldermen today with the veto of Mayor Kiel, and is not expected to pass over the veto.

The Mayor said he objected to making one of the two courts hold night sessions, because it would increase the congestion in the day court, which now forces many witnesses to remain in court from 9 a. m. until late in the afternoon. He doubts if the evening session would be of special benefit to many defendants. Police Judges Sanders and Hogan both expressed opposition to a night court. Alderman Bergt, who introduced the bill, will ask for its passage over the Mayor's veto.

$25,000 VERDICT TO MRS. PELL

Society Woman Gets Judgment for Husband's Death by Train.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Mrs. S. Osgood Pell, a society woman of New York, was awarded today a verdict of $25,000 for the death of her husband, who was killed in August, 1913, by a Long Island Railroad train which ran down at Long Beach the automobile in which he and Mr. and Mrs. S. Laimbeer were riding.

The Court also allowed Mrs. Pell an additional 5 per cent of this amount and the costs of bringing her action. Mrs. Pell sued for $250,000.

100 Lives Lost in Pier Collision.

PETROBRAS, June 23.—A dispatch from Kanan, 490 miles east of Moscow, says upward of 100 lives have been lost in the collapse of a river pier at a local pleasure garden. The last steamer returning to the city was to leave the garden at midnight. A crowd of men, women and children was forcing its way in the darkness to the boat over the flimsy pier when the structure collapsed. Virtually everybody was thrown into the water. Only a few were saved.

70,000 GATHER TO HEAR BRYAN MAKE SPEECH FOR PEACE

15,000 Inside Madison Square Garden, New York, Approve His Points With Roars.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Police experts say 70,000 persons sought admission to Madison Square Garden last night when William Jennings Bryan talked on "national honor" at the mass meeting of the Friends of Peace, an emergency organization of the German, Irish, Austrian and Hungarian societies of New York, co-operating with the Socialist party.

Those in charge of the meeting estimated the crowd at 100,000 and there can be little doubt that the capacity of the garden might have been met three times over. Its seats number 12,245, and when the former Secretary of State arrived at 8:30 o'clock, 200 more at least filled such standing room as could be wheeled from the firemen on duty. Not since Mr. Bryan's appearance at the garden during the presidential campaign of 1900 has such a tide of humanity beat against its doors.

When the doors were opened at 7 o'clock the streets surrounding the garden were packed almost beyond the control of the 300 police on duty. An hour later, when enough had been admitted to fill most of the seats, there had been no appreciable lessening of the crowd as it looked to those who viewed it from the streets. Lines that thrice encircled the great building waited patiently for the chance to take any seat that might be vacated.

Bands and cart-tail orators kept the overflow throng in such contentment as was possible, and at the four corners of the garden organized meetings were held, though Bryan had no part in them. He began to speak at 9:30 and just an hour later he was with Mrs. Bryan for the Holland House, going on to Washington at midnight.

He is again the Bryan of 1900. It was the old Bryan, too, that returned to Washington. The outpouring itself, the adulation of the audience, the intensity of feeling that found expression at every opportunity, brought back the flashing eye, the passionate gesture, the ringing voice of 15 years ago. Clapping in his arms a great bunch of roses, capped by a dove with outspread wings, Bryan was radiantly happy as he said good-by.

The German-American officers of the meeting gave full credit to their Irish-American co-workers. Irish-Americans were there in considerable numbers, of course, but from the high platform where the speakers stood it seemed that the proportion of German-Americans was fully 3 to 1.

"Is wohl!" punctuated Bryan's address till it may fairly be said to have been the cry of the evening, and those who sold Kaiser blue were as numerous in the aisles as those who sold little bottles of grape juice.

In enthusiasm the outpouring was as notable as in its numbers. Applause came in roars, deep-chested and sincere, at each reference to the two things that seemed to be the burden of every mind—the possibility of war with Germany and the attitude of the American newspapers.

Attacks upon American Press. Bryan was quick to catch the temper of his audience and before he began his prepared speech he attacked the newspapers of the country with an earnestness quite beyond anything he has shown in recent years. This had been the first note of the evening, for George von Skel, in introducing Henry Weismann as the chairman, charged the "perverted and suppressed truth" regarding the war.

Chairman Weismann took up the theme, charging the newspapers with leading the people to believe that it had been Bryan who was responsible "for bringing us to the brink of war." When Weismann called Col. Roosevelt "a blot upon the history of our country" there was some hissing and more booing, but when he introduced Bryan as the "new leader of the American people who stand for peace," there came a wild demonstration.

"I am not as indignant as you over the position of the New York press," Bryan said when he had stopped the cheering at the end of two minutes. "I am more accustomed to it. I have been in politics for more than 25 years, and I tell you that I have never yet known the New York press to take the side of American people on any question."

A wild burst of cheering stopped the former Secretary as he said this, with emphasis that drew his lips tight and white.

"You who are not accustomed to burials," he continued, "suffer more from the experience through which you are now going than does one to whom burial has become commonplace."

"They shall Not Assassinate Me." "I would not surrender my trust into the hands of irresponsible editors who have no regard for sacred duty, and for two years and three months they sought to assassinate me. Now, I am ready to meet them, and they shall not assassinate me."

Bending far over the railing of the platform Bryan cried this challenge again to its feet. Holding up his hands to check the cheering, he continued:

"For two years and three months they have been saying that I was not fit to be in the office I held, and then they straightaway called me the savior of my country because I quit. Since August last the newspapers have been telling the Government what to do, but when I signalled my return to private life by saying what I thought, they demanded by what right I discussed matters of so great importance."

Then Bryan explained that it was necessary to his propaganda to put into the hands of the newspapers the text of his prepared speech, and that "in order to keep faith with them, though they do not keep faith with the people," he would read the draft of the speech he had given out for publication.

HARVARD'S SECOND VARSITY EIGHT IS DEFEATED BY YALE

Only Three-Fourths of a Length Separates Boats at Finish of Morning Contest.

FRESHMAN RACE DELAYED

It Will Be Decided After the Varsity Event, Which Starts Late This Afternoon.

REGATTA COURSE, New London, Conn., June 25.—Yale's second varsity eight won by three-fourths of a length over the Harvard crew in a snappy two-mile contest over the Thames course, this morning.

The Yale men led from start to finish and though Harvard made a game rally in the last quarter of a mile the Crimson crew could not overcome Yale's lead.

Yale caught the water first and, with a faster stroke, opened up a lead of a length at the half mile mark. The two crews rowed a clean stroke and there was little splashing. Harvard increased her stroke and came up on nearly even terms with Yale. Yale shook off the challenge and at the mile had a lead of nearly a length.

Near the finish Harvard came strong and cut down Yale's advantage to a few feet. However, she over the finish line with one-third of a length to spare.

The official time of the second varsity eight contest was: Yale, 19:47; Harvard, 19:44.

Freshman Race Postponed.

The freshman eight race was postponed until this afternoon. The crews were at the starting line when a wind sprang up and it was decided to postpone until later in the day.

The freshmen eight race was postponed until this afternoon. The crews were at the starting line when a wind sprang up and it was decided to postpone until later in the day.

For the information of those inclined to daily with the law of chances, it may be said that the Yale crew in today's event, which was a four-mile race, was defeated by Harvard by a length and a half.

Outcome a Mere Guess.

The experts maintain their air of expertise, and dwell knowingly upon the fact that the Yale crew is a very fast starter and may possibly get off in front. If Harvard is a little slower in the start, the Yale crew will have a good chance of winning.

The best a layman can learn is that Yale has a very fast starting crew and may possibly get off in front. If Harvard is a little slower in the start, the Yale crew will have a good chance of winning.

St. Louis Women Eliminated in Tennis Tourney

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 25.—In what experts claim to be the best exhibition of tennis yet displayed in the tournament, Miss Kathleen McKinnel defeated Mrs. Malcolm McNeill.

The last set stood 4-2 against Miss McKinnel, when she made a great rally and went out in straight games. Miss McKinnel's fine drives were especially accurate, the champion being praised at the end of the match. The steady game of Miss McKinnel, however, gave her the match.

BALTIMORE, June 25.—The Baltimore Federals today announced the purchase of Pitcher Rankin Johnson from the Chicago club of the same league.

White, Born Abroad, Has Learned the Game Here

CHARLES ANCHOWITZ was born in Liverpool, England, March 25, 1891. His parents were of Polish-Hungarian extraction. Early in life they emigrated to this country.

Ultimately they took up a residence in the vicinity of Chicago and it was in this neighborhood that Anchowitz did most of his fighting. He has been boxing for nine years and was a champion of the world's champion, Willie Smith.

Three or four years ago he was considered just a good boy, fighting at 125 pounds. It was not until he had given the best of his time that year he showed his punch by knocking out Joe Thomas twice, George Meyers, Jack Abel, Mickey Sheridan and Kid Kansas, all tough ones. In addition he made a great record against Wolcott, Dundee and others.

The following year he astonished everyone by giving away weight to Jimmy Delly and by outpointing and administering a sound thrashing to a champion of the world's champion, Willie Smith.

This year he has been, and is, the greatest fighter.

"Goodnight Wallop" Makes Charley White a Great Fighter

By Robert Edgren

CHARLEY WHITE HAS THE REAL KNOCKOUT KNACK THAT MADE FITZSIMMONS, MCCOY, AND MANY GREAT OLD-TIMERS FAMOUS. THIS IS THE WAY HE DROPPED THE K.O. ON YOUNG BROWN.

WELSH IS OF THE OPPOSITE TYPE --- CLEVER IN AVOIDING TROUBLE, SHIFTY, TRICKY, BUT UNABLE TO BEAT ANY GOOD LIGHTWEIGHT IN THE DECISIVE WHITE STYLE.

FITZSIMMONS WAS THE GREATEST FIGHTER. HE HIT WITH SHORT, CLEAN K.O. PUNCHES — LIKE WHITE.

WHAT IS REMEMBERED OF JULIAN — EXCEPT THAT WHEN HE HIT HIS MEN THEY WENT DOWN?

White's Knockout Punch Earns Him Place Among World's Greatest Boxers

Born in the Liverpool (Eng.) Ghetto 24 Years Ago, Charles Anchowitz "White" Has Battled His Way to Recognition as an International Title Factor.

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1915, by Press Pub. Co.)

AFTER seeing the striking manner in which Charlie White disposed of Young Brown recently, I feel a strong inclination to compare the Chicago lightweight with some of the great men in that class a few years ago. And White doesn't lose in the comparison. He is a genuine fighter, and as near to the proper material for a champion as we can boast at this time.

White has one thing that makes a fighter remembered. He is a great hitter. He has that rare knack of driving a blow only a few inches and landing it with a jarring effect that produces a sudden knockdown or a knockout.

He is a great fighter because he is a thinking fighter. He works deliberately, with deliberate purpose, and when he lands the blow he intends to land there, nothing left but the referee's count.

White's way of handling his fists may be compared to that of a dozen great champions, for, after all, the great ones had something in common. He hits like Joe Gans, and Joe Gans learned the craft of hitting by following Bob Fitzsimmons around the country and studying his methods in various state bouts and ring battles. He hits like McCoy and McCoy learned much of his skill from Fitzsimmons, although he developed a few separate peculiarities himself.

Fitz Best of All Fighters. Fitzsimmons was the greatest fighter of his time, and since he passed into the retired class no other man of equal fighting ability has shown in any class, from bantam to heavyweight. A middleweight, Fitzsimmons won world's midweight, light-heavyweight and heavyweight championships. He won because he "delivered the goods." And no fighting man without a punch can deliver the goods.

What is remembered of the great John L. Sullivan in his prime, except that when he hit they went down? Sullivan was a deadly hitter. That's why he is still famous, when scores of other men a hundred times more skillful are entirely forgotten. Nobody knows whether Sullivan had a good duck or a good sidestep or not. And nobody cares. He won his fights like a champion, prising every time that he was the best fighting man. And that's enough.

White is now one of the great fighters of his time, and since he passed into the retired class no other man of equal fighting ability has shown in any class, from bantam to heavyweight. A middleweight, Fitzsimmons won world's midweight, light-heavyweight and heavyweight championships. He won because he "delivered the goods." And no fighting man without a punch can deliver the goods.

White's last nine fights with clean knockouts. This certainly puts him where he can demand recognition of White is a bout of championship length, with a referee's decision.

If White refuses to accommodate him to his man, he can only one reason. Eight of White's last nine bouts give the answer.

St. Louis Title Winners to Play Only Amateurs

Cleveland Brand Must Be Washed for Intercity Series, Abeken Says.

If a series between the municipal baseball champions of St. Louis and Cleveland is to be arranged, the Forest City officials will have to come across and live up to amateur rules.

Rodoway Abeken, Director of Municipal Athletics, stated this morning that he would not send the local title winners against semi-professionals.

In a letter received by Abeken from an official of the Cleveland Amateur Baseball Association that official admits that the class A teams in Cleveland play with a wide interpretation of the word "amateur."

Abeken stated that in case the Cleveland series, which has been hanging fire for several months, falls through, then he will try to book games with some other city. He also said that he would write Minneapolis officials in regard to a series for next year.

The Only Thing Ty Hasn't Stolen Is Agnew's Mask

Detroit Star Is in Line for a New Base-Running Record This Season, Now Having 47.

Three stolen bases yesterday at the expense of Messrs. Sevelid and Agnew, not to mention Harry Hoch, who boosted Ty Cobb's season output of thefts to 47. Now it figures out like this: The season is two-fifths spent. At the rate he's traveling Cobb will steal 120 bases before Oct. 4. The present day record is 88 steals, negotiated by Clyde Milan of Washington.

1912. Can't you see where Milan's record gets off? It should go to smash no later than Sept. 1 unless Ty breaks a leg. One thing sure, it's either a leg or a record. Something must break.

Against Cobb's collection of 47 steals which is high in the National, Cobb also leads in run getting, having double in the major league value is even near.

SPORT SALAD BY L.C. DAVIS.

The Terriers Trimmed. HARK, from the tomb a doleful sound! They kicked our ball teams all around.

The Terriers won a dozen straight! And then from Brooklyn pulled their freight.

They hustled on to Baltimore And lost a battle, two to four.

The Terrapins hopped on to Groom And turned our joy to deepest gloom.

But still one dozen in a row We claim is not so very slow.

Today our vengeance we will wreak And start another winning streak.

The Kards Killed. A LAS! The Duke of Buckingham Caught Miller Huggins in a jam.

Our pennant hopes received a jolt That jarred us like a thunderbolt.

It was a game where clubs were trumps And many pitchers got their bumps.

Gadzooks! The things they didn't do To Robby, Meadows and Perdue!

While Zabel, Standridge, Cheney, In turn were walloped something fierce.

The Cards were shunted to the dump By grace of Mr. Orth, the "ump."

For, when our old friend Heinie Zim Slid into home they picked him.

Gonsales tagged him at the plate— The "ump" said "safe" and such is fate.

The Browns Baffled. THE Browns received their daily dose And Rickey murmurs: "Vas lat Los?"

HUG PUTS IT UP TO DOAK TO STOP ROGER'S RIOTERS

Cardinal Pitching Staff Pretty Well Shot as a Result of Yesterday's Farce.

ZIM'S STEAL QUESTIONED

Gonzales Claims Interference From Fisher and All but Slugs Umpire Orth.

CHICAGO, June 25.—With an even break the best he now can hope for and his pitching staff in a state of exhaustion as the result of yesterday's freak battle, Miller Huggins is up a tree for ways and means of obtaining that ever break. Dock is the only remaining twirler unscathed from yesterday's struggle and he is over night selection to work against the Cubs this afternoon. Breanahan is not in much better shape, as he used up four alleged deliveries before finally getting over the winning run in a weird game, 16-13.

Lavender is away on his honeymoon and Vaughn worked Wednesday. The leaves only Humphries, who is laid up with a broken finger. It therefore becomes necessary for Huggins to send back one of his hurriers who tossed yesterday. It is likely that he will call upon Pierce, a southpaw.

Hug's Protest Justified. Aftermath of that notable struggle yesterday is an absorbing topic among fans regarding the righteousness of a kick registered by Gonzales and Huggins over the ruling of Umpire Orth of a play at the plate when Heinie Zim, a man stole home with the winning run.

One hears the contention that he was tagged before he slid, and that the plate and that he should not be allowed to score because of interference by Fisher. Then there is some talk in the contention that Fisher, at bat, interfered with Gonzales and away it went. Close play, and fans were expecting the worst when Heinie's safe and the game was over.

Orth Has Narrow Escape. Gonzales lost his head and wanted to rough house Orth, but Huggins

"WE'LL START ALL OVER AGAIN," SAYS TERRIER MANAGER

With Winning Streak Broken on 13th Game, Locals Plan New Offensive.

BALTIMORE, June 25.—After a team has run its number of straight wins into double figures, it is but natural that it should be laboring under a great strain. Despite what any of the players might say, the fact is that one and all are constantly wondering when that loss will come. It's an unpleasant feeling and now that the winning streak has been broken, one and all of the Terriers cheerfully admit they are glad it is over. It is not meant to be said that they are happy they lost, but when they enter the set this afternoon the one desire to win with no thought of the winning streak being broken will be in mind.

Bender to Meet Plank.

A big time is booked here for tomorrow, which will be known as Bender-Plank day, when the pair of former major leaguers will face each other for the first time in their career in a professional game. The big chief won his last start, and so did the left-hander, consequently a right royal battle may be expected. The postponed game from the last trip will also be played tomorrow. So with Plank and Bender pitching in addition to a double-header, the big and other hurrah affairs of the night, the banner attendance of the season is expected. If Grandall can't stand this afternoon he or Watson will be worked in the double-header.

Just what it was in not known, but the fact is that the fielders did not show anything like the pep yesterday that could be expected from a team that had just won a dozen straight. There was no snap and dash about them and this was even the case when they were on even terms with the home boys. Pos and they waited and waited coming out and it was not until the manager Jones would have derided him sooner than he really did.

Such pitched good ball, although a sensational catch by Walsh off Hartley's bat in the ninth, on which he made a double play and on which he could have pulled off a three-put killing, as nothing would ever have stopped Borton and Miller coming across with the runs necessary to tie up the count had the ball gotten past the Terp third baseman.

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Case of Jerome Travers.

Two handicapping committees of 1914, one in the tennis and one in the golfing world, refused to abide by the time-honored custom of ranking as No. 1, in a class by himself, the winner of the national championship. Jerome Travers and Maurice McLoughlin, stars on the links and courts respectively, were both beaten in the 1914 title finale; but neither was rated second.

On the contrary Travers, who succumbed to Olinette, was rated equal with him, while McLoughlin, defeated by Williams in the tennis championship, was actually placed ahead of his conqueror. This met the approval of practically every fair-minded sportsman.

In the case of Travers, the judgment of the committee was justified last week when Travers was easily outplayed by Olinette, but the whole country, in the national open championship.

Ranking Merely Approximate.

That, in any game, ranking the men at the top is merely approximate. With the good players success is more a matter of the moment than of the breaks of fortune.

As a matter of fact Travers is more entitled to first place in the golf world of today than any other American player, professional or amateur. This is because of his consistently good performance over a considerable period of time. Whereas Olinette has been open champion once and national champion a single time, Travers has:

Won the national open title once.
Won the national amateur title four times.
Won the Metropolitan championship three times.
Won his State championship three times.
And displayed many other evidences of permanent No. 1 rank. There may be golfers with better form than Travers, but there seems to be none who can so consistently do his utmost when it is most needed.

A Surpassing Test.

That this is true of his medal playing as well as of his match performances (commonly referred to as his strong point), is shown in the recent open championship. At the sixteen-hundred green it was announced to him that he would have to finish out the last four holes in par in order to win the championship by the margin of a single stroke.

Travers came through with the necessary performance. Probably not even Ray or Vardon would have shown that amount of nerve.

Those National "Amateurs."

BROWNS SHOULD FIND FLINT SOFT PICKINGS TODAY

Rickey's Men Play Exhibition Game With South Michigan Leaguers Before Tiger Final.

DETROIT, Mich., June 25.—Today was another off day for the Tigers and Browns and both went to barnstorming. Rickey's athletes boarded the trolley for Flint early in the morning for a game with the South Michigan League team in the Vehicle City. The Tigers went to Grand Rapids for a joint with the Black Sox, members of the Central league. Both return to Detroit tonight for a rest before the final game in the week's series at Navin Field.

At about 10 o'clock the present series, St. Louis employed three pitchers in Thursday's game and lost. The team, except what Wellman is occupying the mound against the Tigers, Wellman is a host in himself, so far as Detroit is concerned, and he is scheduled to entertain again on Saturday, which will be his third day here during the week. Manager Jennings is already planning who to send in against the Mount City nightmarers. Detroit is expected to be more powerful against the local team than it was in the game to the Browns, but very rarely in the Mount City crack southpaw.

The Browns have George Daves a more serious threat to the Tigers than the one that hurler has experienced before. Daves is an ordinary pitcher, but he has hit him for enough safeties Thursday, which will be his third day here during the week. Manager Jennings is already planning who to send in against the Mount City nightmarers. Detroit is expected to be more powerful against the local team than it was in the game to the Browns, but very rarely in the Mount City crack southpaw.

This would leave the teams that play here on Sundays the winners of the Class A series, to participate in the national series.

We are playing under a very broad interpretation of the word AMATEUR, on Sunday, permitting semi-professionals to play, as well as the listing of the best amateurs. So that these teams will be fully as strong, if not stronger than the Tealings. Stroules of last year.

On the other hand, the Saturday teams do NOT pay their players and are, in our judgment, strictly amateurs and are deserving to play in the intercity series fully as well as the Sunday teams.

Before I say anything to the Cleveland newspapers or to the C. A. B. A. about this, however, I want your judgment on the same. I have suggested this to you before, but I don't recall having received a reply in any letter to me. If this doesn't meet with your approval we will play the same as planned before. I take it, if you want us to play Sept. 2, 1915.

Most sincerely,
CLAYTON C. TOWNES, Sec.

St. Louis municipal sports are absolutely clean. Under the same thing can be said of all other cities, national "amateur" championships will be futile.

This Is the Way to Pass Out.

YOU can't keep a good man down. They thought they had cut out Charles Brickley from Harvard athletics, along with his appendix. But they had another think. Despite the fact that his foot was in a cast, he was the best player in the team. He went out in a red-light glare to loud cheers Wednesday when Harvard's baseball nine made it two straight over Yale.

Brickley's drive at the close of the second game not only won the deciding battle, but in the two games he was there like a world-beater. Just as in football. Here's what he did in the two-game series:

Made five hits in seven times up, average .714.
Scored two runs.
Drove in two runs.
Made six putouts in the outfield.
Played errorless baseball.
That's a satisfactory conclusion to an eminently satisfactory college career.

Figures Say Hug Is O. K.

H. L. K.—Miller Huggins may be waning in the arm and in ability to cover ground, but the records show he has been quite up to his best at tackling performance last year. Huggins had but one .300 season. That was in 1912, when he hit .304, stealing 35 bases and scoring 82 runs.

For the past 10 years Huggins' record shows a grand average at bat of .264 and 21 stolen bases. Here is the way his average for 10 years compares with that of 1912:

Runs. Bat. Av. S. B.
10-year average.....81 .264 21
Last season average.....83 .304 35

In other words, Huggins in 1912 performed as good as his average for the past 10 years, old as he is.

Langford and McVey Matched.

Another match has been arranged between Sam Langford and Sam McVey of California. Immediately after the Jack Britton-Mike Glover contest, Mike Murray, matchmaker of the Atlas A. A., Boston, signed the man to meet for round at the next show, to be held at Canton, O., on the afternoon of July 5.

Tommy Walsh, who handles the affairs of Joe Mandot, the New Orleans lightweight, has just been told that McVey has accepted Mandot to meet Johnny Griffith, the Akron fighter, in a 10-round bout, to be held at Canton, O., on the afternoon of July 5.

Owing to the fact that Charlie "Young" Walcott is matched to fight Gumbert Smith at New York, the fight between Griffith and McVey will be held at New York next month.

COMMISSION TO DECIDE

SISLER CASE—JOHNSON
CHICAGO, June 25.—The National Commission will decide between the claims of the Pittsburgh Nationals and the St. Louis Americans to the services of George Sisler, the University of Michigan pitcher. President Johnson of the American League said today.

Sisler has just finished his career at Michigan and planned to join his former coach, Branch Johnson, manager of the Browns, but the Pittsburgh club intervened with an alleged previous claim, and President Johnson instructed Rickey not to sign the pitcher until the commission could act.

Joplin, Mo.—Artie Redfern stopped Kid Wilhelm, six rounds.

Platteville, Wis.—Stanley Kloczyk shaded Jack Kelly, of Butte, 10 rounds.

Among the entries for the Future City boxing show were such well-known performers as the "Mexican Kid," "Kid" McGuire, "Kid" Albert, "Kid" French, and "Kid" Nelson. The above gentlemen are all tanned kids.

Made five hits in seven times up, average .714.

E. Collins' Double With Two Out in 19th Wins Long Game for White Sox

TWO were out in the first half of the nineteenth inning of yesterday's game between the White Sox and Cleveland when Buck Weaver singled. Eddie Collins then broke off a double and the Naps bit the dust in one of the greatest struggles of the season.

This, incidentally, was the second winning battle of the season, and resulted in the second Chicago triumph. On June 17 the Cubs conquered the Superbas, 4-3, in 12 frames, Zabel pitching 13 1/2 innings.

The White Sox used up three pitchers yesterday, starting with Scott, who lasted seven frames, coming back with Cicotte for one round and closing with Faber, who blanked the enemy for 11 innings, yielding only three hits. He fanned nine and walked only two, leaving his chest of one of the best performing pitchers in the league.

In the major leagues this season. Some other interesting things are:

The Sox made 20 hits, against 10 for the Naps.

There were only seven walks. Nineteen men fanned.

Buck Weaver made five hits and Roth made four.

There were four double plays and three stolen bases.

Robbie Wallace rendered decisions behind the bat.

Twenty-seven men were left on bases.

Maisel vs. Baker.

"Would you trade Fritz Maisel for Frank Baker?" asks a New York writer. His answer is emphatically, "No."

The reason is obvious. Maisel is now batting .301, while his speed on the wall over .300. Baker is batting .250 in the tenth year and scored the winning run on a wild pitch.

Last year Baker batted .311 against Maisel's .235. However, Maisel is far the better run-keeper and topped the Trapeze.

Chicago Speedway Autos

Average 110 Miles Per Hour in Tuning Up Spins

CHICAGO, June 25.—With practice ended, drivers of the 24 cars entered in the 500-mile race at the Maywood Speedway tomorrow were busy today making final inspections and adjustments of their machines.

Record-breaking time is expected to be made on the two-mile wooden course, as several of the drivers in practice spins have averaged better than 110 miles per hour. Reuter, the Italian driver, who was second in the recent 500-mile race at Indianapolis, has been allotted the pole position for the getaway. The cars will be started in groups of four, it was announced.

Prize money amounting to $5,000 will go to the winners of the race.

O'Brien to Quit A. A.

CHICAGO, June 25.—President Chivington of the American Association announced yesterday that Umpire O'Brien would quit the A. A. ranks after today's game to join the Western League. William Friel will take O'Brien's place.

Finances and Umpires Responsible for Today's Western League Meeting

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 25.—Finances and umpires were responsible for the calling of the meeting of the Western League here today.

"The Western League clubs are all in much better shape than they were two or three weeks ago," President O'Neill said upon reaching the city from Chicago.

Demand Heavy on Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund Contributions Must Come Fast to Keep Pace With It Great Opportunity for Fortunate Children to Help More Unfortunate Ones

With July, August and September and Their Many Exhausting Days Ahead, the Need of Money Will Grow More Pressing and Those Who Wish to Aid Must Act Quickly.

CONTRIBUTIONS.

Previously acknowledged $384.25
Scholarship of $250.00
John A. Hoffman 20
Total $404.25

The three trying months for the babies in the tenement districts of St. Louis, lacking proper nourishment and distressed by heat, are just ahead. Mortality among them in July, August and September is greatly increased unless they have an adequate supply of pure milk, with the free ice requisites to keep it pure.

There is the testimony of official statistics to the great good accomplished in this respect by the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund in former years, and the record will, it is confidently believed, be fully maintained in 1915. This means that a greater demand will be met, for it is present, according to the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission and the Free Ice and Diet Circle of King's Daughters. The active agents of these organizations, through which the fund is dispensed, have for weeks been encountering greater need than in any former year.

The fund for saving the babies on June 15, 1914, amounted to $103,181. This year it is about $500 below that amount. This difference, in view of the increased necessity, should serve to stimulate effort on the part of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice League members, and that it will do so is hardly to be doubted, since the boys and girls of St. Louis have for the last 10 years responded heartily and effectively to the call upon their generous impulses. In this, too, they have had the cordial cooperation of parents and other grown-up persons of St. Louis.

Why Activity Has Been Delayed.
Owing to the unseasonably cool weather, with brief intermissions, until a few days ago, coupled with the school work which has but recently terminated for the summer, the league members were not active as in former years when high temperatures, beginning in April, admonished them to take up the work in behalf of the babies.

But there is in the situation this year an element not heretofore present that made for increase of the need for succoring the babies, namely, adversity. This is the lack of employment for hundreds of working people, growing out of the unsettled conditions chiefly due to the war in Europe. This unemployment bears heavily upon the very class of citizens among whom the need of help and succor is found. While conditions are improving the process is gradual, and meantime the babies are suffering from the effects of enforced idleness on the part of parents.

How to Cope With Situation.
An excellent way to cope with the present situation is for the St. Louis boys and girls constituting the membership of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice League at the close of the 1914 campaign, to take up active work for the fund at once, and, in addition, for each

KILL COCKROACHES!

Easy Matter to Exterminate These Filthy Pests.

Even a feeble imagination can think of the germs the cockroach must bring as it crawls around the kitchen and pantry, contaminating and spoiling food. Now is the time to kill off the cockroaches and free your home from the repulsive insects. A dozen cockroaches killed now is better than killing hundreds later.

A two-ounce box of Stearns Electric Paste which you can get for twenty-five cents from any druggist will rid your home of cockroaches or water bugs. It is much better than poisons, as it can not blow away and get into the food. Easy to use and an absolute exterminator. Directions in fifteen languages in every package.

Membership Buttons to Be Given to All Pure Milk League Workers

Membership in the league is won by helping the league to save the babies.

A membership card also will be sent to each person who thus qualifies.

member to bring into the campaign at least one new member. This will be an easy matter, and the result will be a prompt doubling of the army of active workers, with consequent increase in the relief resources.

Pupils of the Shennandoah School, a junior grade institution, contributed $1 to the save-the-babies fund, through the Mothers' Circle of the school. The sum was raised by the children according to their own plans, the mothers smilingly approving the idea of the little ones as proposed and encouraging the benevolent impulse behind them.

For the fifth consecutive year children residing in the district about the 5000 block of Wells avenue are arranging a benefit entertainment for the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. Misses Adele Foerster and Eleanor Marshall, each about 13 years old, are among the enthusiastic promoters of the affair, which is announced for next Wednesday afternoon and evening, on the lawn of Mrs. Foerster, 4223 Wells avenue. Substantial returns have come from each of the previous entertainments, and the coming one is expected to lead in that respect. It is to be a carnival, with vaudeville numbers every 15 minutes from 8:30 to 9:30 p. m.

CITY ATTORNEY GARESCHE RETIRE UNDER NEW CHARTER

He Did Not Seek Appointment as Associate Under City Council.
Vital W. Garesche retired as City Attorney today, when the reorganization of the law department, under the new charter, became effective. The new charter abolished the office of city attorney. That work will now be under the jurisdiction of the City Counselor. Police Court prosecutions will be conducted by associate city counselors.

Garesche's term as City Attorney expired last April, and he had been holding over pending the new charter changes becoming effective. His "nolle prosequi" activities had caused complaints to be filed with Mayor Kiel against him by two Police Judges and Health Commissioner Starkloff, but Mayor Kiel had stated he would not act upon them because Garesche would soon retire from office. Garesche was not an applicant for appointment as an associate city counselor.

Charles H. Daus, who today succeeded William E. Baird as City Counselor, has appointed several associate counselors, among whom are Truman Post Young, Arthur Bader, Charles B. Davis, Robert Burkham, E. Paul Griffin and Walter R. Hill, a negro. Young will be Daus' first associate counselor.

GREAT STONE-LADEN BARGE RUNS AMUCK IN THE MISSOURI

Menace to Bridges and Docks at Kansas City Captured After 15-Mile Pursuit.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 25.—A big river barge, laden with tons of stone and carried with the swiftly flowing current of the Missouri River, last night, created a panic at the docks on the river front and at the Government river improvement shipyards here.

It was captured after a pursuit of 15 miles, in which it passed safely under two bridges.

Nine men were on the barge, which is the property of the Government and is used for carrying stone for river improvement work seven miles upstream from Kansas City, when cables securing it snapped and the barge drifted out into the stream.

SIX KILLED WHEN FAST TRAINS MEET ON A HIGH BRIDGE

Dozen Hurt in Maryland Collision Due to Mixup in Orders.

By Associated Press.
TREUMONT, Md., June 25.—Six persons, five of them from Baltimore, were killed and a dozen more or less seriously injured when the Blue Mountain express and the fast mail of the Western Maryland Railway crashed together on a bridge 100 feet high over Owens Creek at a few miles west of here last night.

The dead are Mrs. W. Edwin Chipchase of 1817 North Calvert street, Baltimore, and her son, Walter N. Chipchase, 27 years old; Coleman Cook, engineer, Baltimore; C. R. Fritz, Hagerstown, traveling fireman, Baltimore; J. R. Hays, Baltimore, fireman; Luther Hull, baggage man, Hagerstown.

A change in the schedule, in the course of which a mixup in the orders given the conductors of the two trains is said to have occurred, resulted in bringing them together at high speed on the bridge, which spans a mountain ravine.

PARISIAN SAGE

If you value the appearance of your hair you should treat your scalp as often and as well as you brush your teeth and rub into the scalp pores twice daily a little Parisian Sage.

This treatment is not a mere "hair tonic." It is bottled nourishment for the hair roots and it is simply wonderful what an improvement its use for even a week will make in the appearance of anyone's hair. It never injures, is delightfully cool and pleasant to the scalp and takes out the dull, lifeless look in the hair, making it soft, fluffy, glossy and beautiful. Two or three applications remove every trace of dandruff, and daily use will prevent its return.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

"Call a Truce!"

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
If you will "call a truce" into the water, the waves may spread. Anyone contemplating the present European war cannot be blind to the horror of the thing, however remote may be his personal interest in the participants. Arbitration looking to peace seems out of the question.

Why cannot through the influence of the powerful press of our day, another plan be put before the belligerents, i. e., to call a truce for a short period, say to early fall, and in the interval arrange to put two picked armies of volunteers of each side in the field to fight it out; the outcome to be final? Such a plan could be put into operation with the assistance of neutral military experts, by calling a congress of the heads of all the Powers now concerned, and chosen men of these not now involved.

A battlefield within strict limits could be agreed upon, the number of men for each side, rules established which would assure fair play, with a line of military judges chosen in advance, located around the borders of the field of carnage. Such a territory could be chosen where least damage to the larger cities would result; millions of lives could be saved and the present upheaval of the entire civilized world; the misery, sickness and disruption of family and social conditions, which a long continued war brings about, would be greatly minimized.

Parkway Will Yet Be Built.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Having noticed letters upbraiding our esteemed Mayor and Aldermen for their expenditure of $70,000 on the Parkway, which to say that it is exactly what the people of St. Louis elected them for—to improve our surroundings. Although beaten at present, I mean to say that St. Louis will yet wake up and build the Parkway.
Go ahead, old Post-Dispatch, show 'em up in their sworn statements as to their taxation—I mean the Benevolent Taxpayers' Association.

Irishman Pleads for Germany.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Your recent appeal to the American public concerning the celebration of Independence day is timely and beautiful. Yes, "don't cheer boys—the poor devils are dying." It will not fail to make a deep impression not only in our country but in those strife-torn countries also.

But I have in mind one country where it will do no harm, a country where the mothers and daughters know that while we are raising our pious eyes to heaven our hands are busy making bullets to kill their sons and brothers, where the noles of American-made cannon and American-made shrapnel drown the voice that would convey the message of friendship and love, drown every voice but the voice of hate.

Is there not some stronger reason to numb the hands that are busy making bullets, those hands that are ever stretching out for more blood money? Is there not one voice ever so feeble to convey the silent plea of those mothers and daughters? Do not let them say that our sentiment is only an empty phrase, our friendship a mockery, our humanity a mere belief.

"Don't cheer boys—the poor devils are dying." Yes, beautiful, but that's all!

JAS. E. HOGAN.

Good Police Work.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
Last Saturday morning I had my gold watch stolen from my office and I immediately reported it to the police of this city. Today, Tuesday—only three days after the theft—I receive a visit from two members of the detective force, who advise me that I can get the watch by calling at a certain place, they giving me an order on the person holding it to give it to me. It had only come into the possession of the party holding it the night before, Monday night.

This is an example of exceptionally good work and I am told it is being done every day. This being a fact, the people of St. Louis can be thankful for the present efficiency of its police force and the system under which they are operating.

A. W. MOHR.

The Down.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
It is said that Socialism as a political factor is doomed because the "great" parties have absorbed most of its demands. Such reasoning is childish; for, as long as there is private ownership in anything, anywhere, Socialism is not adopted. A new Richmond in the field is the advent of men in the industrial field who have been rounded out of the professions and business generally. These square men a day and "the makin'" will not satisfy them. They will get busy, and the down will break.

SIDNEY AVERILL.

TWO DAMAGING EVASIONS.

Perjury on tax returns evidently does not interest either Circuit Attorney Harvey or the present grand jury.

Members of the grand jury after consultation have decided that it is better to adjourn July 1, according to schedule, than to dig into evidence of tax evasions by perjury.

Circuit Attorney Harvey cannot see the standpoint of Judge Divilbiss or the value of the statement authorizing grand jury investigations for the prosecution of citizens guilty of making false returns. He regards an investigation not as a means of punishing men for violating law, but as a means of increasing the revenues.

The law can be enforced. The Post-Dispatch has pointed out methods of evasion and ways and means of getting evidence. The law has been enforced elsewhere. St. Louis, however, through the inertia of public officials, sits helpless and supine in the face of wholesale law violations.

The spectacle is a sorry one. We have presented facts showing a widespread practice of making false returns for taxation. We have pointed out how banks and tax-dodgers conspire for the evasion of taxes—deliberate evasion through transactions, real or sham, devised for the purpose. The proof is within reach of legal process.

A few indictments would not only bring a much-needed increase of revenues, but it would check law violation—the prime purpose for which the office of Circuit Attorney and the grand jury were created. Neither tax evasion nor law violation will be stopped while there is evasion of law enforcement.

ANOTHER CHRISTMAS DINNER PREDICTION.

George Gordon Moore, American traction magnate, who became very chummy with Gen. French at the British headquarters in the field, says King Albert will celebrate next Christmas in his own palace at Brussels. At the present rate of progress it is not clear how the prediction will be fulfilled. Perhaps Mr. Moore purposes to run an interurban trolley up from Dixmude into the palace grounds.

PERVERSE OLD GEN. CARRANZA.

Mexico's great need is for a strong man, but its greatest possibilities of harm can come from an obstinate man.

Villa and the effective leaders associated with him are responsive to Washington's efforts for ending the war. They will agree to a truce. They are prepared to enter a conference with representatives of opposing factions to arrange conditions for restoring peace.

But obstinate old Carranza will have only a peace which he himself dictates. He flouts Washington and will not agree even to a temporary truce. A permanent exile from Mexico or trial before a Carranza military court are the alternatives he leaves to the fighters who identified themselves with his cause when it was a hazardous forlorn hope and who contributed much more than he did to Huerta's downfall.

Carranza's obstinacy has become the bugaboo of Mexico. It several times jeopardized success during the war on the usurper. To it is attributed all the woes that have come on the republic since Huerta's hasty departure now nearly a year ago.

A man with a modicum of the diplomacy that is not incompatible with firmness in a leader might have prevented the split with the lieutenants to whom he owed so much. He seems to be a hard man to work with, and if he triumphs and ends the war on his own terms, this same hard, unintelligent obstinacy threatens more trouble for the country in the future.

To jar him out of his self-sufficient perversity is a man's size job. Nobody in Mexico seems equal to it. Apparently only the power of the United States can attempt it with any hope of success.

THE LID ON KITE-FLYING.

Chief Young has ordered his policemen to stop boys who fly kites within the city limits. The kites are continually becoming entangled in telephone wires. This causes short circuits and interrupts service.

As, presumably, the order applies only to public streets, how can it contribute materially to the result aimed at? Private premises, including vacant lots, playgrounds and parks still remain available for kite flying, and compared with their area that of the streets is unimportant.

St. Louis boys in the exercise of the fascinating and inalienable boy right of kite-flying, have found the telephone wires a great nuisance. They are always interfering with the string just when the flight is most successful. Kites are frequently destroyed by contact with the wires or catch on them at places where recovery is impractical. And still the boys of St. Louis have never insisted that the telephone companies shall remove their wires to facilitate kite-flying. Why does Mr. Young insist on forbidding kite flying to facilitate telephone service? No boys, so far as is known, have even instituted damage suits for injury to kite property.

DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURT.

It is understood that the Circuit Court Judges who, on Saturday, voted to revise the mode of procedure so as to facilitate the hearing of cases, were also in favor of the suggestion of a number of citizens that a Court of Domestic Relations be created by an extension of the powers of the juvenile court, so that it should take cognizance of domestic tangles, which, of course, are very frequently the cause of juvenile delinquency. The Judges were of the opinion, however, that a special law would have to be passed authorizing this change. Such a law failed of passage in the last Legislature.

Missouri needs Domestic Relations Courts, such as have been very helpful in Illinois and Ohio. Especially in the large cities, such courts can save men and women and, incidentally, their children, from becoming failures in life.

The first Court of Domestic Relations in Chicago, established in 1911, disposed of 6495 cases in the first two years of its existence. In two-thirds of these cases it was found unnecessary to issue warrants. And one of the best public services the court has been able to perform is in following up deserting husbands and fathers and inducing or compelling them to support their families. It is here that the juvenile court, with its limited powers, can do little.

A Domestic Relations Court has the power to save a family as a unit, which is manifestly the highest possible service a court can render.

MORE BRITISH INSOLENCE.

In plain words, the British reply to the President's protest of March 30, against lawless interference with our ships and cargoes is an impudent persistence in wrongdoing. Nobody is more conscious of this offense than the members of the British ministry, for in answering us now, they reverse the record of their own Government in like cases for many years.

When the United States, under international law, has rights clearly established what can be more intolerable than to have a professed friend say that those rights will be invaded only with the minimum of inconvenience? What can be more insolent than to be assured by such a friend that on interrupting our lawful trade with neutrals it will graciously refrain from violence or confiscation? Is there any outrage that one nation can afflict upon another at peace more humiliating than to subject its legitimate commerce to a piratical censorship?

No matter how many diplomatic notes may be written or how cleverly or falsely they may evade the real issue, the British Government cannot justify the seizure of neutral ships laden with noncontraband goods bound from one neutral port to another. International law recognizes and defines blockades, but it specifically declares that no blockade shall be operative against nations at peace.

The British blockade of Germany is in fact a blockade of Holland, of Denmark, of Sweden and of Norway. We have made no complaint as yet against the legality of the so-called British blockade of Germany, although it is known that it is maintained at long range, and there is not even a pretense that it is effective in the Baltic.

It is because the British blockade of Germany is spurious that these troubles have arisen. It is not a true blockade of Germany. It is more particularly an embargo upon the United States. The much-vaunted British sea power does not close the ports of Germany. It is attempting to accomplish that purpose in an easier way by denying to the American people the freedom of the seas.

If the United States cannot command respect in Great Britain, what reason have we to hope for consideration in Germany?

CRAP-SHOOTERS AND TAX DODGERS.

Here is a little fashion note culled from yesterday's news of the police round-up of crapshooters:

The 15 negroes gathered in the grand jury anteroom were what the Circuit Attorney laughingly admitted were a sporty bunch. Their habiliments figuratively "talked" in fact they almost screamed. There were silk shirts, of the $5 variety with loudest colors and stripes; silk hose, silk palm beach suits and the flashiest straw hats imaginable.

We wonder what sort of a sartorial showing a bunch of millionaire tax dodgers would present by contrast.

THIRTY SOCIAL JUSTICE STATES.

Even Alaska now has a workmen's compensation law. In four years the number of states with such a law has increased from 13 to 30. Eight states adopted the principle during the present year—Colorado, Indiana, Maine, Montana, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Vermont and Wyoming. A commission to prepare a compensation law was named in Utah, but that may not mean an enactment at any very early date. Missouri appointed such a commission two years ago, but lack of leadership prevented action at the late legislative session.

It is a just principle that the loss resulting from casualties to the army of workers shall be borne by the industry. The loss in Missouri falls on the individual, mitigated by such fraction of a damage judgment as his lawyer does not retain after years of litigation. Those states will be considered very backward states, indeed, which shall not have provided compensation laws at least by 1917.

YUMA IS SHOOKED.

What's the matter with Yuma? She lost her sensitiveness about the time that she lost her reputation some years ago. She became indurated and inured to scandal and harsh rumor. People spoke and thought of Yuma only in connection with the Bad Place, with which Yuma was compared to her disadvantage. Jokesmiths, comedians and the Weather Bureau affirmed that Yuma was the warmer place and that if they owned both places they would rent out Yuma and live in the other one. Everybody grinned whenever her name was mentioned, and she became a staple of the great American stock of humor.

What could poor Yuma do? She couldn't move away to avoid the scandal and ribaldry. She stayed right at home on the map, but she couldn't live her reputation down while her thermometer would go up. No wonder she quit trying to reform, but grew careless and profane. After a while she dropped out of sight and the world at large forgot her. It was the kindest thing that the world could do. . . . And now comes the painful reminder that she is still on earth with the news that she has been visited by an earthquake, which opens up her past and revives all the old gossip. The finger of scorn points once more to the weather reports, showing her with the old fever burning in her veins. Alas, 7 degrees above normal—106—she registers daily, in her same old place of disgrace at the bottom of the long list.

Righting a Wrong

Shielding another, a man goes to prison. After the years his sweetheart learns the truth, finds him and begs forgiveness for his suffering.

By Ina Chester Lowe.

"THE situation is pathetic," spoke Alexander Barr to his daughter, Felicia. "It is fairly tragic. But you must keep out of it, and the boys, too."

The fair faced girl made a gesture of submission. She was injured to the iron will of her father. The clear gentle eyes, however, showed a shadow of regret, of longing, of pity that the hard nature of her father could not read.

"I feel so sorry, father," she said in a subdued tone. "Mr. Woods has been so kind to the boys. It looks like deserting a friend in his dark hour of need."

"I regret it as much as you do, Felicia," declared her father. "However, Woods has made his bed and must lie in it. Embellishment is an ugly word. We must not get the taint on our proud family name by supporting or extenuating the faults of the culprit. He must take his medicine."

Which meant that Allen Woods must undergo a sentence of five years in the State penitentiary for appropriating money belonging to others.

Felicia left her father and went to her room and locked herself in. It was to weep bitterly, to battle against the impulse to go at once to the imprisoned man and impart to him the earnest sorrow of her true heart.

Mr. Woods had been a cherished friend, and more, she had learned to love him and they were all but engaged. Years before her father had given the father of Woods friendly business aid the son had never forgotten. When Mr. Barr lost most of his means, Woods had done a very kind act. The two Barr boys, the brothers of Felicia, thrown on their own weak resources, had made poor business progress. Woods had built up a profitable real estate and collection business. He took into his employ Ned and Dick Barr.

Father and sister did not know how lucky a burden Woods had undertaken to carry. The brothers were dissolute, unreliable, dishonest. Woods abated their shortcomings. Then came a crash. A large amount of collections had not been paid to creditors. Woods was charged with embezzlement. He could not or would not explain where the money had gone. He was arrested, tried and sentenced.

The Search for Woods.

FELICIA during a dark period of gloom for Felicia. She missed the company of the man she had loved. Often and often the impulse was strong within her soul to send some word of pity, even at the cost to the lonely convict, but she was overwhelmed with grief when her father died.

The year following news came that Ned had been shot and killed in a gambling house fracas, in a mining camp in the West. Of Dick she did not hear for six years. Then one day a stranger visited her. He was from South America. He brought a tiny, tot of a child, a girl.

Dying, Dick Barr, then a widower, had entrusted this friend with some small means and the little orphan, to be consigned to the sister he had not seen for over half a decade.

Mr. Barr had left very little when he died and Felicia had supported herself by giving music lessons. Now a change would come. What her brother had sent her would certainly support herself and her little charge. Felicia planned out a quiet patient future. It was easily broken in upon.

It was when she came to read the closely sealed letter her brother Dick had sent her that she was aroused vitally, as one from a lethargy. Her eyes flashed, her cheeks were dyed with shame. She bowed her head and wept bitterly.

Then, a grave determination in her face, she started forth on the mission of her life. She made arrangements for the care of little Alice. Then Felicia went to the penitentiary where Woods had served his long term of imprisonment.

The Agent's Report.

SHE shuddered as she stood within the office of the grim, gaunt penitentiary where the man she loved—aye, and the man she respected—now had wasted the best years of his life.

The records did not aid her much in ascertaining what had become of Woods. He had been a good conduct prisoner and had received a time allowance. When he was discharged he had given no address. He was sometimes asked of convicts who had received mail.

"I have no letter coming, no home, no friends," he had told the Warden. "I have been dead for years. I begin a new life, alone, unaided, but with firm trust in heaven's ultimate goodness," and the tears rolled down Felicia's cheeks as this pathetic story was told her.

For over a month Felicia pursued

"I think we have found your man, Miss Barr," he said.

"Oh, I am so glad!" murmured Felicia, clasping her hands in grateful hope.

"This Allen Woods seems to have broken down in health after leaving the penitentiary," narrated the agent. "The result of his long confinement. He learned this much—that he went to Colorado. He was at a place called Rocky Glen. He may not be there now, but he was six months ago."

Charlie, the Chimney Sweeper

Sandman story of the brave and industrious boy who was richly rewarded for saving the noble's daughter.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

It was raining, in torrents. The water fell in sheets and the wind howled around the box in an old shed in a vacant lot.

Charlie was dirty, black as a coal. His face and clothing were covered with the soot from the chimney, and after it was well soaked with rain, he looked as if he had waded into an inkwell. But he curled up around in the dry box and went to sleep, snoring softly till morning, and when he woke the sun was already high in the sky. A woman was crossing the lot when he stepped out of the shed.

"You are the very one I need," said the woman. "I was just going out to get a sweep—the chimney at our house is so foul the fire will not burn."

"I will be glad to get the job," said Charlie. "Perhaps I can get something to eat when I have finished."

"Go to that big stone house in the park on the right-hand side," said the woman pointing. "Lady Gray Dandridge lives there. Inquire at the kitchen about your work."

So the lad swept out the big kitchen chimney, where the smoke from the baking and roasting had blackened the bricks for years; then he had a good breakfast. After eating, he maid told him to sweep the chimneys of the remainder of the house. One by one he cleaned them till he reached that belonging to the library. This was a beautiful chamber, full of handsome portraits, books and old armor, and when the boy stepped down out of the dirt and on to the hearth of the room he was astonished by its beauty. But the prettiest thing in the place was a golden-haired baby, who lay asleep on a rug made of tiger's skin. Her curls hung over the dead animal's stuffed head and her little hands clung even in sleep to a tiny doll.

But Charlie did not stop long. In a few moments he was up the chimney, whistling as he swept the soot into a bag. Black, dirty, he was happy at his work. But presently he smelt an odor as if of smoke.

Like a stone Charlie dropped back into the room. It was filled with smoke. Rushing to the door, he looked out into the hall to see that the staircases was a roaring mass of flames that were licking up the steps and making smoke that way impossible.

Charlie ran to where the baby still lay asleep. How was he to save her. The room was in a wing of the house and on the third floor. It would not be possible to go down the stairs, which were a bed of fire, and it would mean death to leap from the window, for below, the pavement was of stone. But he seized the baby in his arms and leaped to the window sill. Below he could see the men and women of the family gaining up toward him in horror and the half-crazy mother imploring someone to save the child.

The boy saw the wall was covered with a very old grapevine, which was strong enough to bear his weight. Already the flames were creeping into the room, the smoke blinding him and the Everybody loved the kindly, genial stranger.

Her heart beat wildly as she reached the vine-covered hut which he had built for himself. She came upon him as he stood drinking in the invigorating air. He stood spellbound as she spoke his name.

"I have come to restore to you the money of which my brothers robbed you," she said clearly. "Here is a letter they must read. Oh! why did you do it?"

Why!—because of gratitude to her father, because of love for herself—to spare them, and he had hoped the secret was buried forever.

Then: "Forgive!" Oh, not that word! He glared in his self-sacrifice!

She turned to go. He put out his hands pleadingly.

"If this could be home to you," he said. "If you ever cared for me?"

"Oh, always!" she cried unrestrainedly, and upon his shoulder she sobbed out all the pathetic story of the past wasted years.

It was June, radiant June, the time for mating, the month of brides, and Rocky Glen welcomed to its hospitable homes two staunch, helpful hearts, who found peace and happiness in that remote solitude.

SOME NEW RECIPES.

Shredded Pineapple.—This is excellent for any meal as a dessert course, or it may be added to lemonade, claret punch or orangeade with excellent results.

Cut out the blossom and top ends of the pineapple, also the eyes, with a sharp knife or scissors. Pare the skin, then hold the fruit firmly and with a fork shred it to the middle core, leaving the latter firm and intact, ready to discard when juice has been squeezed out. Put the pineapple into a glass air-tight jar, add about one cup of sugar to five of the fruit, seal the jar, keep on ice for several hours and serve.

Gold and Silver Marble Cake.—Gold part: Three-quarters of a cup of sugar creamed with ¼ cup of butter, then add the beaten yolks of 3 eggs and ¼ teaspoonful of vanilla. 1 cup of flour sifted with 1 teaspoonful of baking powder and ¼ cup of milk. Silver part: Three-quarters of a cup of sugar creamed with ¼ cup of butter, ¼ teaspoonful of vanilla, 1 cup of flour sifted with 1 teaspoonful of baking powder, ¼ of a cup of milk and, lastly, the stiffly beaten whites of 3 eggs. Bake in a round loaf, but do not put in the pan in the old-fashioned way (first a spoonful of one kind and then the other), but pour the whole of the gold part in first and then the silver part on top. The result is a most delicious marble cake. Frost with chocolate frosting.

Pittsburg held its first "kite day" recently and 600 children flew kites in one of the public parks. A Chinese boy had a kite 70 feet long, in the form of a cat-tailed. The figure of another kite was that of Uncle Sam.

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
 By Roy L. McCardell

Mr. Jarr, in Friendship's Holy Name Gets Into a New Batch of Trouble.

"HERE'S, we go for lunch!" asked Mr. Jarr of Jenkins, the bookkeeper at the office. "I don't believe in eating a big lunch."

"What's the matter? Are you broke?" asked Mr. Jarr. "Whenever I hear a man talking that way I know he hasn't much money."

"Well, you see," said Jenkins, "my wife's away and I'm getting my own meals—keeping bachelor's hall."

"You should be hungry for something to eat, then," said Mr. Jarr. "If you are doing your own cooking I can tell you what you had for breakfast."

"What did I have?"

"You had bacon and eggs," said Mr. Jarr. "And you had bacon and eggs for supper the night before, and you'll have bacon and eggs tonight. That's all a man knows how to handle. Didn't your wife leave the girl to look after you?"

"She," replied the bookkeeper, "she took her along."

"Oh, a good looker, eh?" said Mr. Jarr. "Well, how are you getting on with the housework?"

Mr. Jenkins frowned. "I'm afraid to go home. My wife will be back tonight. You ought to see the house."

"What did you do to it?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"Do I know how to make beds?" asked Jenkins in angry self-justification. "Did I take lessons in plain cooking and sewing? Did I marry to do general housework? No, I didn't!"

"So you slept in a different bed in the house every night the family was away?"

Mr. Jenkins nodded.

"And you forgot to water the plants, and you left the windows up the night it rained so hard, and you didn't put the screens and the house is full of flies?"

"She told you," asked Jenkins.

"I've been there many a time," replied Mr. Jarr.

"Well, we have tramps in our suburbs," said Mr. Jarr. "And I forgot to lock the front door and somebody got in and pinched our silver wedding rings and the best clothes we had."

"Is that all?" asked Mr. Jarr.

Mr. Jenkins said Jenkins. "You know how cases will accumulate, and I left it to be a good plan this morning to wash them all together by turning the hose on them, but it didn't work, the milkman called for his bill and I forgot to turn off the hose, while I was talking to him, and the water all ran in the dining room and into the parlor and carried a lot of dirt with it because I had upset a saucer of coal in the kitchen, and intended to clean it up, but was always in a hurry to catch a train and didn't, and now I'm afraid to go home tonight. The house is sure a sight!"

"And you want me to take you to the house?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"Well, it would be a brotherly act," said Jenkins.

"It's a shame to spend so much money on food," said Mr. Jarr. "Come with me to the 'Old Arm Chair.' It isn't a tree trunk, but you get a good plate of hash for 5 cents, and pickles and crackers are free. While you are reaching for a pickle you can palm an egg—hard-boiled eggs are two for 5, but while the houseman isn't looking you can slip one over."

"How can you get away with the whole?" asked Jenkins.

"No shells on them. It's a quick lunch," said Mr. Jarr.

Mr. Jarr and the temporary grass wherever want to the 'Old Arm Chair.' They had their hash, and Mr. Jenkins (very good for a beginner) made a double egg sandwich. Mr. Jarr in a spirit of bravado doing a triple.

Being pleased at these feats of skill, they left the office early together, stopping hither and thither as they went along.

"This is a pretty time to get home, and me keeping dinner waiting!" cried Mr. Jarr.

"It was Jenkins' fault," said Mr. Jarr. "His wife's away and he's so nervous I had to stick around with me to keep him from drinking."

Don't Ever Let Anyone Tell You This as a New One

RIGHTWARD: Does it cost anything to ask if I'm sick, doctor?

Physician: Not a cent. However, my answer will cost $1.

Not Settled Yet.

"Is the head of the house at home?" asked the agent for the miser the family answered the doorbell. Making no effort to answer the question, the miser person said: "I don't know what line of goods you are introducing or whether they would fit in our establishment or not, but please of the matter being satisfied here or there; but let me tell you something: If you can establish a name and for all best who is to be recognized as the head of this house to buy a gown of whatever price you want and pay the outrageous price."

HOW did you happen to get that medal you're wearing?"

"I got it for saving an empire's life. I had a pop bottle in my hand when he called Hecawep out sliding in the home plate with what should have been the winning run, and I didn't have it."

Shoe Poker

It Isn't Exactly a Regular Game, but It Is Played Because the Great Variety of Styles Make It Possible.

HAVE you taken a hand at shoe poker? It's a merry little pastime, and, thanks to the shoe designers, running riot this summer. It's likely to prove one of our best-known outdoor sports for the season. Just at present shoe poker parties are confined to the idle young men who hang on the corners downtown, though it can be played in West End and other residential districts, also. Every hand is a jackpot and each player is entitled to five shoes. The game is played after this fashion: The first player elects to choose the shoes worn on the first five women to pass the corner. The second player the next five, and so on. If the first five women who pass the corner are wearing the regulation lace-up-the-front shoes the player has a straight. If the second group of five women all chance to have on boots of the same color—white, black, champagne or any one of the dozen or so various colors worn this season, the second player call a flush and naturally beats the straight. If, in the third group of five women shoe wearers, there are two pairs lacing up the front and three lacing up the side, that's a full house and the third hand beats both the other hands. Because of the variety of design in female foot togery this year, there are a surprising number of combinations that can be made. If you are an idle young man, with a penchant for gambling and loafing on street corners, too, you can do both at one and the same time by indulging in the new pastime. Only one caution is to be observed in playing: Don't let the "deck" (as it shuffles by) know the part it is playing in the game.

Slogans of Success

By Hazen Conklin.

THE time to be dissatisfied with your progress is before it has stopped—not after.
 THE man who keeps his best foot forward seldom has to step back on the other one.
 ACHIEVEMENT is the meat on the bones of life. Fame is merely the fat.
 A RIVER is a poor thing to use as an example, for it is the only thing on earth that "gets along" and still spends much of its time in its bed. And at that it has to "rise" to hit the "high-water mark."

MAKING a joke of life always gives the other fellow the last laugh.

You Bet They Wouldn't.

WHAT are their views on woman suffrage?

"I'm against it," said the politician decidedly. "You can fool the men voters with cheap cigars, but the women folks would never stand for cheap candy."

Don't ever assert positively what you would have done in another's critical position. You only think you know.

A New Author.

M. R. CORY is gently given to study. His wife, on the contrary, never reads at all. She does, however, occasionally take down a volume in order to show some sympathetic interest in her husband's favorite pursuit.

One morning, during breakfast, Mrs. Cory remarked: "I took down a book yesterday by an author named Volv. Is he considered a good writer?"

"Volv, my dear?" queried the husband, in perplexity. "Volv, did you say?"

"Yes," she replied. "I'll get it and show you."

Leaving the table, she soon returned, bringing a book which she handed him. It was a volume of Browning's poetry and had been bound with no name on the back, simply bearing the legend "Vol. IV."

Silencing Father.

WHEN I was a boy," said the head of the family, "I had to wear my father's old clothes made over."

"That's all right, dad," answered his son. "I've got a couple of old suits you can have."

Making It Even.

I HEAR the high-school girls made their own graduation gowns this year.

"Yes, but they made up for it by cribbing their commencement essays out of the encyclopedia."
